

Judge the Media by Its Cover

A recent study confirms that the media is “tilted” towards the homosexual movement.

A study by Pew Research Center’s Project for Excellence in Journalism reveals that nearly all media sectors produced pro-“gay marriage” stories while covering the Supreme Court hearings on two same-gender marriage cases. From March 18 (one week before the hearings) through May 12, half of the news articles (47%) reported by major media outlets favored same-sex marriage, 44 percent was neutral, and only 9 percent focused on support for traditional marriage.

In its summary of the study, Pew notes that the “news media focus on support [of legalizing same-sex marriage] held true whether the stories were reported news articles or opinion pieces, and was also the case across nearly all media sectors studied. All three of the major cable networks, for instance, had more stories with significantly more supportive statements than opposing, including Fox News.” more...

News Coverage Shows Momentum for Same-Sex Marriage

Date Range: March 18-May 12, 2013

Note: For news media, Huffington Post and LGBT outlets, the numbers are percent of stories. For Twitter, the numbers are percent of conversation and were derived using Crimson Hexagon Technology. For public opinion, the numbers are percent of respondents. For the public opinion surveys, mixed/neutral was not an option.

PEW RESEARCH CENTER

Source: OneNewsNow

```
[fblike style="standard" showfaces="false" verb="like" font="arial"]
```

WATCH: Pro-life, Pro-family ad

In rare form anymore, a positive, pro-life, pro-family ad was produced for Publix for Mother's Day. As science is showing more clearly how life begins at conception, and now more people identify as pro-life, we think we will see more of these types of ads in the future!

```
[fblike style="standard" showfaces="false" verb="like" font="arial"]
```